ADULT CLASSES

SENIOR STUDENTS COLLEGE FOR OLDER ADULTS

Curator-guided tours coupled with hands-on art activities related to each exhibition is the theme for William King Museum of Art's fall classes. Four very different exhibitions will provide a varied course of learning: Allegory of No Region features contemporary artist Bill Rutherford's large, colorful canvases packed with tidbits of literary allusions; Realms of Earth and Sky introduces paintings from Indian history; Cherry Bounce, just in time for the elections, will be a lively look at American presidential politics through the years; and the old-time photography process of Cyanotypes in the works of local artist Jocelyn Mathews.

6 Sessions: 9/13, 9/20, 9/27, 10/4, 10/11, and 10/18  Supply fee of $15 (total) | each session runs 1-2:30 p.m.

For more information contact Lori Rouse, WKMA Director of Education, at 276.628.5005 ext. 114 or lrouse@wkmuseum.org

Cherry Bounce October Event Schedule

Panel: International Politics in the 2016 Presidential Race

Thursday, October 20 | 6:00 p.m.

The third educational opportunity and second panel discussion associated with the Cherry Bounce Show, this panel of experts on international politics will be reviewing the major domestic issues of the day and their importance to the campaign. This moderated panel will include an opportunity for the audience to ask questions of the panelists. A relaxed atmosphere to talk about important issues, all in the presence of the beautiful artwork of the Cherry Bounce Show.

Panel: Appalachian Art, American Politics: Artists and Art Historians on Political Art

Thursday, October 27 | 6:00 p.m.

Months ago we came up with a crazy idea - invite a collection of some of the best modern artists in and of Appalachia to participate in a show about American politics. Most of these artists are not principally interested in political art, but nonetheless took up the challenge. Our melange of wonderful art, and the associated events accompanying it, was the product. Come hear the artists speak about their work, ask them questions about it, and generally celebrate Appalachian art and American politics. It will be wonderful.
